MISSION

The mission of the Council on Grantsmanship and Research (CGR) is to offer support and resources to facilitate grant writing and program review across institutions of higher education in the state of Oklahoma.

HISTORY

The CGR is a group of sponsored program officers and grant writers from Oklahoma’s regional universities. The council was formed as an outcome of the Oklahoma universities and colleges grant administrators’ meeting hosted by the Oklahoma State Regents for Higher Education in July 2004.
GOALS

Open to all sponsored program officers at institutions of higher education in Oklahoma, the organization focuses on the importance of using external funding as a means to drive intellectual capital on campuses and as a means to support high-quality learning experiences for students. It encourages the successful pursuit of funding opportunities through collaboration and provides a network of support to advance grantsmanship and research activities among Oklahoma’s institutions of higher education. In pursuit of these goals, the CGR offers support and resources to facilitate grant writing and program review across institutions of higher education in the state of Oklahoma.
